

Using Shoe Sizing Graphics

(1) Print out foot sizer at 100 % on printer (using two letter size pages). Fold page one precisely along green center line. Place fold precisely on green line of page two. Tape page one and page two firmly together.

(2) Use an inch or cm ruler to check the side measurements of taped page for accuracy. Caution: If the measurement is off by more than 1/16 of an inch, you might end up with the wrong shoe size.

(4) Compare your foot outline with the download Correct Fit diagram, to help determine your size. The tips below provide helpful information.

(3) While sitting, place your foot on the shaded foot area. (Wear hosiery that you use with your shoes.) Place your foot on the pictured shoe outline. With a pen or pencil, draw an outline close in around your foot onto the graphic.

Tips:

- Every person has a different foot size, as do a dancer's left and right feet often differ. But your foot should fit within the length. Some dancers add an additional 3/8 inch or about 0.8 cm to accommodate the Ms. Stomper's tapered toe. If your current shoe has a removable insole cushion, place it on the graphic for more fit information.
- When you put on shoes, the width of your foot will contract slightly, as it conforms to the interior of the shoes. So if your foot goes slightly over the side lines, that size could still fit you.
- Check width through the heel, as Ms. Stomper has a somewhat narrow heel.

Wrong
Foot outline
is too large for sizer
graphic

This diagram shows a pink foot outline that is significantly larger than the black shoe outline it is placed inside. The text is written in red.

Wrong
Foot outline
is too short and too small in heel for sizer
graphic

This diagram shows a pink foot outline that is shorter than the shoe outline and has a noticeably smaller heel. The text is written in red.

Correct
Foot outline
approximates
sizer graphic (soft tissue
around arch
should give
and conform to shoe contour)

This diagram shows a green foot outline that fits snugly within the black shoe outline. The text is written in green.